Diplomacy on the Edge

Containment of Ethnic Conflict and the Minorities Working Group of the Conferences on Yugoslavia
Geert-Hinrich Ahrens

"Ambassador Ahrens participated from the start in efforts to mediate conflict in the former Yugoslavia. He had the unusual advantage of knowing Yugoslavia well (which other mediators did not) and speaking Serbo-Croatian. The study should provoke renewed interest, and perhaps debate, about the actions of the major figures in the drama."—Paul Shoup, Professor Emeritus, University of Virginia

"Geert Ahrens spent a decade as a top diplomat negotiating peace in the former Yugoslavia. He has written a superb memoir of European and American diplomacy beginning with the fruitless effort to head off the violent break up of Yugoslavia in 1991 through the Croatia and Bosnia peace negotiations in the first half of the 1990s and culminating in the Kosovo War in 1999. Candid and lucidly written, Diplomacy on the Edge is an important contribution to the history of the Balkans in the 1990s by a professional diplomat who helped shape that history."—Peter W. Galbraith, US Ambassador to Croatia 1993–1998

With ongoing war crimes trials, the yet unsettled status of Kosovo, and the odd assortment of new states struggling to create, reorder, and maintain political institutions, economies, and societies, the countries of the former Yugoslavia continue to challenge not only themselves but also the international community.

Diplomacy on the Edge tells about the international efforts to mediate the political, economic, and social climate of these countries in 1991–2004 when some of the struggles were deadly. It adds to the literature on peacemaking and offers an important reflection on the future of the Balkans. Geert-Hinrich Ahrens is uniquely positioned to tell this story. He is a senior German diplomat who participated in several of the international mediation efforts of the 1990s and an eyewitness to much of the story.

Geert-Hinrich Ahrens, a Fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in 2002–2003, is a German diplomat. He has been Ambassador to Vietnam and to Colombia; from 1992 to 1996 he was ambassador-at-large to the International Conference on the Former Yugoslavia. Diplomacy on the Edge is co-published with Woodrow Wilson Center Press.
